Bequest Leaving a Gift in Your Will

Leaving a gift in your Will to BDNH is one of the most thoughtful ways that you can benefit the community. A gift for the future will show forethought, planning and community commitment.

People from all walks of life leave gifts both large and small to BDNH, recognising the role played in supporting our clients' health needs.

Supporting your independence

How can you make a gift to BDNH in your Will?

Your bequest (or gift) to BDNH can take many forms including:

- Cash or securities
- Real estate
- Life insurance policies, life income plans, annuities or trusts
- Cultural property such as books, manuscripts and works of art

A bequest to BDNH can be used for many things including:

- Upgrading our nursing equipment
- Scholarships, training and education for our nurses
- Providing low income clients with much needed consumables free of charge
- Enhancing our mobile and administration computers
- Refurbishing our buildings and equipment

Bequests can also be made without a designated purpose in order to assist BDNH priorities at the time. BDNH will always follow the wishes of the person making a bequest wherever possible.

Talking to one of our staff before you finalise your Will can help you decide on the type of bequest that will be most effective.
